History of the Streets, Roads and Highways of Topsfield

by C. Lawrence Bond

Introduction

This article has been compiled, condensed and added to one printed in The Historical Collections of The Topsfield Historical Society, Volume 12, of 1907, by Henry F. Long. George Francis Dow's History of Topsfield to 1900, published posthumously in 1940, copied, almost verbatim, Long's article. Now, three quarters of a century later, it is not easy to identify many of the places referred to, much less comprehend the long-worded descriptions of ways laid out from the corner of someone's barn to the lift of gates by Ensign So-and-so's field. I hope this may be more readable and suggest that those who are interested for genealogical reasons, and wish to know over whose land the ways led, should refer to the original wording given in Long's article.

Roads, in the seventeenth century, were little more than bridle paths. Carriages, called carriculs, were not introduced to New England until 1725. When a road was defined, it was usually because it needed to be widened to let carts pass. As the coastal villages grew in size, it was necessary to look inland for hay, lumber and fuel, so the paths became cartways, and obstructions had to be removed or buried.

In 1633, Ipswich was occupied, by order of the Governor, to keep the French from encroaching upon Massachusetts Bay Colony claims. Governor Endicott had been granted land beyond the bounds of Salem, in parts of what became Topsfield, Boxford and Middleton. Samuel Symonds was granted five hundred acres in Ipswich, and Governor Winthrop's son, three hundred acres. Reverend Nathaniel Rogers and Captain Daniel Patrick, both of Ipswich, received three hundred acre grants. What William Paine was granted and what he bought is not clear, but he is said to have had seven hundred acres in Topsfield. H., 20.

It must be remembered that Church and State were not separate in the 1600's and that Meeting Houses were just that. Church was a spiritual union, not a building. The granted lands were all seven miles or more from the coastal villages, and as soon as settlers established themselves on these grants, by lease or purchase, they wanted to have a meeting place and their own minister.

The agitation for a separate village in Topsfield started in 1643, but it was 1650 before the Town was incorporated. Meanwhile, roads were made between farms and around obstacles, whether local boulders or hills or swamps. (No one has ever explained the choice of Salem Road over the hill.) If there were any attempts at defining the roads during the first eight years of the Town's history, the records were burned in 1658, when the Town Clerk lost his home in a fire.

However, we do have references to a road which connected Andover and Ipswich through Topsfield, a short distance from the Ipswich Town line to the Boxford line, and to a bridge over the Ipswich River in 1656.

Little reference has been made in the following article to cover all the abandoned ways, as Henry Long's paper gives them in considerable detail. Perhaps the most important one was that which served the "colleges." (I like to think that the word meant there was a collection of houses, rather close together compared with the scattering of farms elsewhere, and not that it applied to the inhabitants because they read the papers.) From Perkins Row, near its eastern end, the road ran south and crossed the Mile Brook near the present dam and into the Audubon Society land, coming out to Perkins Row again near Cowpens Brook and the entrance to the Sanctuary.

It might be well to point out that the following descriptions of ways follow the direction in which the houses are numbered, i.e., away from the village, although the original layout may have read in the opposite direction. For streets in the village, it was necessary to have the houses numbered according to their spacing. In the outer parts of Town, there are one hundred numbers to the mile.

For the first two hundred and fifty years of our history, it was seldom, if ever, that the Town took the fee in the land between the side lines. Damages were paid sometimes if a layout encroached upon a farmer's field or garden, but if the way was discontinued or altered the land reverted to the abutter. The Turnpike, of course, was a private way until the County finally took it over. A farmer was allowed to maintain gates across the roads that intersected his property, for there were strict laws about allowing animals to roam.

It is only within the present century that it has become common practice for the Town to take title to the land within the way. This is due largely to the use of the way by Utilities and the need for expensive construction to accommodate auto traffic. Planning Board rules invariably require new ways to be deeded to the Town.

I hope that it will not appear that I have been unduly critical of the prior writers on the roads to which they have attributed certain definitions. At the time they were writing, the maps available were few and the compass bearings, if any, meant little. After the allocation of the common lands, the same name appeared as the owner of several disconnected parcels, making it difficult to identify a road by the names of the abutters.

My reference notations have been abbreviated and included in the text, rather than given as footnotes. Roman numerals are for the Volume. Arabic numerals are for the page. There follows a list of the abbreviations.

In the original descriptions:

R.	Rod(s), equal to 16½ feet.
L.	Link(s), equal to 0.66 feet.
P.	Pole, the equivalent of a square rod, or 272¼ square feet.

In March, 1636 (new style), a court had been established to meet quarterly in Ipswich, and references to court orders refer to that court. Later, Salem became the County seat, but County Commissioners were not established until 1828. When the court ordered ways or bridges to be repaired, it was up to the local Selectmen to appoint the persons to attend the matter.

History of the Streets, Roads and Highways of Topsfield

by C. Lawrence Bond

ALDERBROOK DRIVE runs southerly from Cross Street between Hill and Rowley Bridge Streets, terminating at Rowley Bridge Street where it nears Route I-95. This roadway was laid out as the main thoroughfare for the Meredith Hill development, beginning in 1965, engineered by George E. Hayes of Melrose. The whole area of this tract was owned, prior to its development, by Richard K. Wheatland.

The 1664 division of lands to thirty Commoners lay in this area.

ANDREWS ROAD runs northerly from Meetinghouse Lane toward the Turnpike. The State would not approve an opening onto the pike because of the steep gradient and fast-moving traffic. The subdivision was made for Myron Peabody, Sr., of Topsfield, by C. Lawrence Bond in October, 1956. It was accepted March 5, 1962.

It was named for the Andrews family which owned the French-Andrews house in the 1700's. Robert Andrews bought land in this area as early as 1654 from John Wilde . (Ipswich R. of Dds., Bk. 5, p. 238) This area, before the incorporation of the Town, was probably a grant to William Paine.

ARROWHEAD ROAD runs northwesterly from Colerain Road. The lower portion was a wood road which curved around toward the upper end of Colerain Road, a district called the Klondike at one time. The original idea of developing house lots was Otto Lake's, at a time when the Town was still expected to improve a way to residential property. Lake sold to Ovide Bouchard, for whom C. Lawrence Bond did the engineering in 1955. In 1956, the upper portion was laid out. Leon Bouchard, a son, submitted plans to extend the turn-around, to enable more lots to front upon the street, but steep gradients made the project unacceptable to the Planning Board. The way as it exists was accepted March 5, 1962.

Zaccheus Gould owned the land in this area at the time the Town was incorporated. See the note under Gail Street relative to the Patrick grant.

ASBURY STREET runs southerly from Ipswich Road by the Bradley Palmer State Park to the Hamilton Town line. Originally the bridge over the Ipswich River was nearly half a mile downstream and the way curved southwesterly by the Lamson House (#24 at present) and continued up the hill as it does today. In 1925, Palmer wished to remove the traffic from the close approach to the Lamson House, parts of which are two hundred years old, and he paid for construction of the present bridge and the highway approaches to it. The old bridge used to have flower boxes placed along the rails on each side, presumably cared for by Palmer's gardener. The County surveyed the whole length of the road in 1931 and made minor changes in the Ipswich Road intersection in 1965.

Henry F. Long in The Historical Collections XII, 52, gives the following information: "This part of town was annexed February 16, 1774, it being a part of Ipswich prior to that date. An old road is with some difficulty traced from the old main road from Topsfield to Ipswich across the 'old fordway' a short distance below the present (1907) bridge to the Lamson House which was located here very early, but the records do not give a lay out previous to 1814. The town records under the date of February 28, 1814 have a selectmen's return of the laying out of a road from 'the Guide Post on the County Road near the Lamson Bridge, so called, to said Lamson House ... to the foot of the hill.' In 1872 the County widened and straightened this way."

The name derives from Asbury Grove in Hamilton, toward which the road leads, a grove used for Methodist Campmeetings.

AUDUBON DRIVE runs southerly from Perkins Row not far from the entrance to the Audubon Society's Ipswich River Wildlife Sanctuary, but due to the swampy area around Cowpens Brook, it is doubtful whether it will ever be extended beyond the Proctor Drive intersection. Laid out for Richard J. Skeffington, Sr., in 1961, by John W. Parsons, Engineer, of Lynn, as part of the development of "Green Acres," it was accepted March 1, 1965.

See the note under Perkins Circle for the original ownership of this area.

AVERILL STREET, not Road. (Because of the similarity in sound to Haverhill, it is important to distinguish the two by use of "street" for the former and "road" for the latter.) This way starts southeasterly from Ipswich Road, crosses the Turnpike near Shoemaker's Corner and ends at Perkins Row. Formerly called Ridge Street for a glacial ridge upon which it runs for some distance, it was renamed for one of the first families to settle in Topsfield.

The first layout of record was ordered March 19, 1666/7, but it does not appear to have been acceptable, as it was again ordered at a Town meeting "ye eleventh of ye 3rd month, 1669." This layout was made in connection with the mill which was located on Mile Brook north of Ipswich Road. In 1694, it was again laid out as a horse way, "holding ye same breadth that carts may pass if need bee."

Note: While surveying for what is now Andrews Road, it was observed that the contours indicate there was a travelled way from the Dry Bridge area northeasterly, probably connecting with Averill Street near #37. Construction of the Turnpike in 1804 cut this off.

BARE HILL ROAD runs northwesterly from Haverhill Road to the Boxford Town line. On March 5, 1772, the Town voted to accept a way "laid out from the County road in Topsfield along by the northeasterly side of bare hill (so-called) and so on to the Boxford Line." This would not appear to be the first layout, as there was at least one house on the road in Boxford that ante-dated this.

The County, in 1936, laid it out anew with granite stonebounds to mark the sidelines, but the only major change was the elimination of a sharp bend and "S" curve on the west side of the old railroad right-of-way. The steel girders of the railroad overpass were removed when the tracks were taken up in 1949, and the granite abutments some time later.

BIRCH LANE runs northwesterly from Oak Drive. Laid out by Robert W. and Grace Simms in 1955, engineered by Thomas A. Appleton of Salem, it was accepted October 1, 1957. See the note under Gail Street.

BLUEBERRY LANE runs northeasterly from Haverhill Road. Laid out by Robert W. and Grace Simms in 1975, engineered by Essex Survey Inc. of Salem, it was accepted May 1, 1979.

This way lies on land conveyed in 1653 by Theophilus Shatswell to Thomas Dorman. (Ips. R. of Dds., 2, p. 90) For further details, see HC. XXIX, 69.

BOARDMAN LANE runs northwesterly from North Street to Walker Road. The house that is numbered 22 stands approximately on the site of the Thomas Dorman house, which was built in 1690, but no record of the way has been found earlier than that of November 18, 1845, at which time the Selectmen met for the purpose of laying out a Town highway, "beginning at a corner of the wall by the Ipswich Road, said wall separating a field from an avenue leading to Jacob Symonds' house, thence Northerly and

Westerly by and with said wall as it now stands ... thirty-one and one-half rods ... to land of Lydia Lord .' H., 109. (Note that Ipswich Road, as of 1845, still appears to refer to the North Street route.)

Beyond Walker Road there is a path that crosses Howlett Brook which used to be open all the way to Rowley Road. Shortly above the brook crossing is the fork in Pye Brook where Mile Brook and Howlett Brook separate. This unusual feature was preserved in the early days of the Town by placing wooden sills at the opening into each brook to assure the mills on each an equal share of the flow.

The name commemorates a family descended from Daniel Boardman, who bought the Evans property in 1665.

BOSTON STREET, more commonly called "The Turnpike," runs in a straight line through Topsfield from Danvers Town line to the Ipswich Town line. The road was laid out by the "Newburyport Turnpike Corporation from Newburyport to Boston in as straight a line as possible."

Work was begun August 23, 1803, on High Street in Newburyport. The first toll was taken at the Newbury gate, now Newburyport, on February 11, 1805. Probably no toll was taken after 1847. The Newburyport Turnpike Corporation received $2200. for that part of the "Turnpike" extending from the "house of Jonathan Todd in Rowley to the road leading by the house of Josiah Newhall in Lynnfield laid out by the County Commissioners as a county way," which was accepted May 10, 1849. HC. XII, 53, and XI, 1.

The State took over the Turnpike in 1922, and during 1929-30 spent a large sum in surveying and increasing the width of the travelled way. The width of the right-of-way has always been four rods, or 66 feet. Until the end of World War II, it was one of only three highways in Town that had permanent boundary markers; Rowley Bridge Street and Haverhill Road were the other two.

Boston Street is part of Route 1, which runs from Maine to Florida. Before Route I-95 was finally chosen, the State studied and staked a 300-foot right-of-way throughout its length in Topsfield, but there were many factors mitigating against it. In retrospect, there is no one who regrets the shift of traffic away from Route 1.

BOXFORD ROAD runs northwesterly from Washington Street at Kinsman's Corner to the Boxford Town line. In 1813, the County laid out a new location for a way from the Topsfield Meeting House to the old way near the Boxford Town line. Most of this way is now Washington Street. "From the stake in front of Reverend Hunt-ington's (#111 Washington Street) the line ran north(-west) to a stake in Elijah Gould's land, thence north(-west) to an apple tree marked in Simon Gould's land, thence north(-west) to a stake east of Joseph Smith's gate and so along to the Boxford Meeting House." An improvement in grade and width was made near the intersection of Surrey Lane in the 1950's. See Washington Street for the old way.

BRADSTREET LANE runs northwesterly from the Salem Road—Hill Street intersection toward the Pingree Pines. According to the Land Court plan of the property surrounding it, it is a private way, and no early record has been uncovered to show that the Town ever defined it.

This area was common land until the 1720's, when it was divided according to the amount each commoner had contributed to the minister's rate during the period 1710 to 1720. David Balch was at the bottom of this list and acquired less than two acres, but probably bought up shares from others. He built the house that stands at #1 Hill Street. H., 62 and 64.

BRADY LANE runs northeasterly from Bare Hill Road toward Pye Brook. Laid out in 1971 by Essex Survey Service, Inc., for James R. Brady, it was accepted May 2, 1978.

This area was common land bounding on the eight acres laid out in 1686 for the Ministry on the north and on Bare Hill to the south.

BROOK ROAD is a short way running westerly from Washington Street and dead ends near Fish Brook. It was part of a small subdivision started by Walter Wilkinson and John A. Ross which appears to have had several names: Maplewood Estates, Topsfield Plains and Clover Farms. Dana Perkins and Sons of Reading engineered the project in 1952. After a heated debate, it was accepted at a special Town Meeting held November 15, 1955.

This area lay within the original grant to Daniel Patrick about 1637.

BROOKSIDE ROAD runs southeasterly from Ipswich Road across Mile Brook to Perkins Row. It is the main thoroughfare for the subdivision called Red Pines, started in 1972 by Edward A. Quinn of Topsfield, engineered by John W. Parsons of Lynn. This area, comprising some of the first farms to be settled in Town, was acquired by Thomas E. Proctor around 1900. After his death, the Peck Lumber Company cut off the lumber and sold it to a developer, but the Planning Board rejected the proposed layout. After a score of years, a new proposal was partially accepted, but the connection to Averill Street was deemed unsatisfactory, and the way out to Ipswich Road required crossing Mile Brook and land of the Water Department. It was finally accepted May 5, 1981.

Note: Construction actually started from Perkins Row. Houses are numbered, so far as possible, starting at the end of the road nearest to the village center.

CAMPMEETING ROAD runs southeasterly from Boston Street to Ipswich Road near the Perkins Row intersection. This way was voted upon in 1667 but not laid out until June 22, 1714, at which time the description covers more specifically the southerly end of North Street. In 1836, the County laid out a way from the corner of Haverhill and Ipswich Roads along Ipswich Road to North Street, to Campmeeting Road, and so along to Ipswich Road again. This layout altered the route of Campmeeting to the north where it intersects the Turnpike and to the present junction with North Street.

The Court Record notes "the course of this layout is a new location. ... So much of the old road as lies between the Newburyport Turnpike and the termination of this new location is to be discontinued & the proprietors of the land adjoining have a right to enclose the same taking the materials of the present fence to build the fences on the new road." See HC. II, 78, also East Street, also Ipswich Road.

When the streets in Town were officially named, this was called Oak Street, but common usage kept the name it goes under. A Methodist Campmeeting was held beside it about the middle of the nineteenth century.

The area through which this runs was part of the five hundred acres granted to Samuel Symonds in 1637.

CANDLEWOOD DRIVE runs northeasterly from Perkins Row and then southeasterly to parallel it. R. W. Skeffington, Sr., acquired a large part of the Thomas E. Proctor estate and developed it under the name of Green Acres. This way was laid out in 1962 and engineered by John W. Parsons of Lynn, for a few years a resident in Topsfield.

The name Candlewood was chosen for the handsome stand of pine trees.

This area lay within the five hundred acres granted to Governor Bradstreet in 1643. William Paine, an Ipswich merchant, may have acquired his property by purchase or grant. As there is no record, it is uncertain where the Bradstreet boundary actually lay.

CANTERBURY HILL ROAD runs northerly from Ipswich Road up the hill formerly known as Manning's Hill. Laid out by Leslie Green of Hamilton, it was constructed in two steps, starting in 1952, with Raymond Pressey of Lynn as Engineer. The first portion was accepted March 2, 1959; the second part, June 29, 1964.

On the first subdivision plan submitted to the Planning Board, the road was called Maplewood, but real estate salesmen have their own ideas as to the connotations of a name; witness Leif Erickson and Greenland.

This area was within the five hundred acres granted to Samuel Symonds in 1637 and part of the one hundred fifty acres which Symonds sold to Isaac Cummings after the Town was incorporated. The hill was called Manning's for the owner of the mill at Willowdale who lived at what is now #178 Ipswich Road.

CARRIAGE WAY runs easterly from Alderbrook Drive. Laid out in 1965 as part of the Meredith Hill development for the Meredith Mortgage Corp. by Hayes Engineering of Melrose, it was finally accepted May 6, 1981.

The area was part of the common lands divided among the thirty-one Commoners of 1664. The actual allotment was not made until 1668, when Jacob Towne received twenty acres westerly of what became Hill Street near Garden Street.

CENTRAL STREET runs southeasterly from Main Street across the Turnpike to the intersection of High Street and Perkins Row. The part that lies between Maple Street and the southerly end was laid out in 1699, when a road was laid from "Thomas Pirkinse in to ye way below Enz. Towne." This would have been part of the road that led from the easterly boundary of Town via Perkins Row, Central, Maple and River Road to the Zaccheus Gould property at the western boundary.

The village end of Central Street is described by H. F. Long in HC. XII, 55. This layout was accepted at a meeting held November 27, 1846. This part was known at various times as Mechanic's Court and Mutton Lane. The part between Summer and Maple Streets was laid out by the County in 1872, the work to be completed by 1873, and the County accepted the Mechanic's Court section July 1, 1874.

This area was part of the six hundred acre tract granted to or purchased by John Whittingham of Ipswich, but he never lived on it. However, he was one of the original petitioners for the settlement of a village here in 1643, which would indicate he had received a grant.

COLERAIN ROAD runs northerly from Washington Street near the "Sugar Loaf," so-called before the top-soil was removed in the Works Progress Administration of the 1930's. Before the layout made by Thomas Appleton, Engineer, of Salem in 1937, the way used by Otto Lake followed what is now Arrowhead Road as far as the sharp curve at the top of the grade and then bore right and ended very nearly where the present road ends.

Appleton's layout was accepted March 1, 1937. Beyond the accepted portion, the Town has an easement to allow access to the upper end of Kinsman Lane in cases of emergency.

This area was probably the northern limit of Captain Patrick's grant, which he sold to Zaccheus Gould. H., 19 and 20. But see the note under Gail Street.

COPPERMINE ROAD used to run southwesterly from Rowley Bridge Street to the Middleton Town line. It was closed by the construction of Route I-95 in 1950. See HC. XII, 56. A good deal of these descriptions are for Hill Street. The ford mentioned is probably across Nichols Brook, the boundary now between Middleton and Topsfield.

This area was probably the northeasterly section of Governor Endicott's five hundred and fifty acre grant in 1639. See H., 378. The copper mine, from which the name derived, but which never proved out, was on land now numbered 179 Rowley Bridge Street.

CROSS STREET runs northwesterly from Hill Street to Rowley Bridge Street. The first record appears to be that of March 2, 1730, when the Town accepted the layout of a way for George Bixby over Israel Towne's land to Hill Street. However, the land on the northerly side of the road was occupied as early as 1690. On December 25, 1730, the layout was recorded as follows: "Beginning at the South Easterly corner of the said Bixbies own Land where his now dwelling is so Running Straight on in the same Range of Lotts across Israel Towne's land ... upon the Southerly side of the Middle Range of Lotts, so called by the proprietors ..."

July 15, 1817, the entire length of the road was defined. Another layout was recorded in 1874, and in October, 1877, it is recorded that Captain Morgan agrees to widen, straighten, build and fence the southern part of the Highway called the Morgan Road. See HC. XVII, 92, for the origin of the name "Donation Farm" applied to the area north of the road.

DEER RUN runs northwesterly from Towne Lane and dead ends just short of the brook that drains Great Hill. It was laid out for the Topsfield Business Trust, Richard Hammer of Lynnfield, Trustee, by C. Lawrence Bond, Civil Engineer, of Topsfield, in 1962. Due to friction between the developer and engineer, the staking out was completed by Hayes Engineering of Melrose. As of this writing, the way has not been accepted.

EAST COMMON STREET was given a name when the Assessors' Map was made, to designate the way along the east side of the Common. The Common was originally laid out as a training field where the troops could practice maneuvers. It was laid out in accordance with a vote of the Proprietors of common lands on July 4, 1721. In a sense, this is the only definition of East Common Street.

EAST STREET runs northerly from Campmeeting Road across Wildes Street to the Ipswich Town line, turning westerly just before leaving Topsfield, and ends at the Turnpike. In Ipswich, it is called East Street #2, because there is another East Street in the village.

Before 1954, the East Street name applied to that portion of Campmeeting Road that lies between East Street and Ipswich Road. This accounts for the fact that there are no street numbers below #25.

There must have been some sort of way through this part of Topsfield from very early days. This is indicated by the fact that, in 1673, a deed mentioned that the parties thereto had agreed upon "liberty to pass with cart" through the land of Cummings to land being conveyed. Isaac Cummings owned land on both sides of Hobbs' Brook, purchased from Samuel Symonds in 1652.

At a Town meeting held March 5, 1765, a petition was presented to have the way through lands of Stephen Foster and Benjamin Woodbury "mended by the surveyors of highways." Other than this, no record of a layout has been found. During the 1930's, it was very little used except at each end.

FORREST ROAD runs southeasterly from Washington Street toward Slough Brook. The first portion was opened up in 1948 by S. Warren Forrest of Topsfield, with Robert W. Bixby for an Engineer. Later, Robert Simms acquired the area beyond #10 and developed it, using William C. Pizzano as Engineer. At one time it was planned to connect it with Fox Run Road, but the length of road across the wet lands, unsuitable for house lots, made it impractical.

This area falls within the three hundred acres granted to Captain Daniel Patrick of Ipswich for training the militia, subsequent to his service in the Pequot War in Connecticut in 1637. He sold to Zaccheus Gould of Lynn, who was the first settler to build in this part of Topsfield before it became a Town.

FOX RUN ROAD runs northerly from River Road and forms a loop with a short dead-end place across Slough Brook. In 1958, William Cargill and Robert Simms, both of Topsfield, formed a Trust to develop the area, with C. Lawrence Bond as Engineer. Portions were accepted at three successive Annual Meetings in March of the years 1960, 1961 and 1962.

The area was part of the three hundred acres granted to Captain Daniel Patrick.

GAIL CIRCLE runs southerly from Gail Street and southwesterly to a junction with the second part of the layout of Gail Street. Accepted June 25, 1947, it was named for Peabody's daughter. See Gail Street.

GAIL PLACE, so-called, is not a way. The two lots between #17 and #19 actually come out to Gail Street with 18 foot frontages. There was no Planning Board at the time of the layout of these lots. When one was established, it would not approve of a "place" without a turn-around.

GAIL STREET runs southwesterly from Grove Street and curves sharply to the southeast. The first quarter of its length was laid out by Myron F. Peabody, Sr., in 1939, with C. Lawrence Bond as Engineer. This was accepted March 4, 1940. In 1945, the way was extended according to plans submitted by Bond and it was accepted by the Town June 25, 1947. Subsequently, Peabody stated that he had sold lots by stakes that he had set himself and he had the Engineer make over the layout of the curve to fit the deed description. The changes had to be approved by the Town meeting, and finally, on March 22, 1953, they were accepted.

This area lies within the three hundred acres granted to Captain Daniel Patrick of Ipswich for training the citizens in military matters. H. 20 and H. 19.

Note: If Dow is correct, the three hundred acre tract must have been long and narrow, since three hundred acres is less than half a square mile and the distance from Fish Brook to the Common is a mile and one-half. We know that Zaccheus Gould lived on land he bought of Patrick at the junction of Washington Street and Lockwood Lane, which location is three-quarters of a mile from the River, the southerly bound. Gould owned something over five hundred acres in Topsfield, so it is probable that his property, but not Patrick's, extended almost to the Common.

GARDEN STREET runs northwesterly from Boston Street to Hill Street. First mention of a way in this area was made when a committee was chosen to "view ye way that leads through Jacob Reddington's land." This was to give a convenient way to the lots laid out from the common land. Under date of January 1, 1842, the southerly portion was laid out, and it was approved at Town meeting March 4, 1842.

In 1841, Rufus B. Choate, who later became Senator, argued the case for the petitioner to allow the taking of private property (a garden) for a public way. Thus, the name became Garden Street. HC. XII, 60.

GLEN ROAD runs southerly from Washington Street near the Sugar Loaf. (The name was originally proposed as Sugar Loaf Glen.) Laid out on the property of Thomas A. O'Keefe, Jr., in 1958, with C. Lawrence Bond as Engineer, it was accepted March 7, 1960. The area was probably part of Zaccheus Gould's holdings in the seventeenth century. See the note under Gail Street.

GROVE STREET runs northwesterly from the Main Street, South Main Street, Park Street intersection to Washington Street. Laid out December 6, 1856, it was accepted at Town meeting one week later! How's that for performance? It was named for a grove of trees that formerly existed on the left (west) side of the street northerly of Gail Street.

The hump of rock at the northwesterly end of the street used to be called the Sugar Loaf. It was proposed to use the rock in the construction of the road and to reduce the intersection at Washington Street to one roadway, but the rock was too difficult to excavate in 1856. In the 1930's, G. F. Dow had an idea it could be removed under the P.W.A. with government funds, so all the loose earth was shovelled off, removing the smooth rounded surface that had given it its name. The rotten rock beneath is an arkose granite (Sears' Geology of Essex County, p. 106), not usable for anything that would warrant the cost of excavation. So, one hundred and twenty-five years later, we still have two exits from Grove Street into Washington Street.

The construction of the railroad in 1854 undoubtedly had something to do with the street layout.

HAVERHILL ROAD runs northerly and northwesterly from the junction of Main Street and Ipswich Road to the Boxford Town line (Route 97). It comprises the earliest connection, overland, between Salem and Haverhill. The first layout, dating back to 1668, curved around the outlet from Hood's Pond (Prichett's in those days) and followed what is now Pond Street to the Ipswich Town line and Boxford Road of that Town.

The County made some improvements in 1818 and widened it in 1821. In 1835, the layout beyond Pond Street cut through an esker and shortened the distance to what is now the Linebrook Road intersection by an eighth of a mile. In 1930, the County made improvements in the roads connecting towns, and Haverhill Road was laid out sixty feet wide, curves were flattened and stonebounds set for permanent markers. Until this improvement, there was a fording or watering place beside the culvert at Pye Brook, and at least one local resident took his carriages there to wash them.

The area traversed, at the southerly end, was the westerly portion of the Thomas Dorman purchase of the Shatswell property. The northerly part crossed land of Richard Lumkins' widow. The Pond Street area probably belonged to Dan Clark. I say probably, because Clark was granted various parcels which never got set off to him until October 13, 1650, when "the lot layers shall make him satisfaction out of the common land beyond Mr. Winthrop's farm." "Beyond" means west from Ipswich, and the only area unaccounted for seems to be near Pond Street. See HC. XXII, 96.

HIGH STREET runs southeasterly from the Common across the Turnpike and the Ipswich River to Wenham Road. In 1754, the Selectmen were instructed not to lay out a way toward Wenham until Wenham indicated where it intended to lay out its portion. HC. XII, 62-65.

The portion from the Common to the "School Grounds" (now the Fire Station) was built in 1795. The balance of the road as far as the Turnpike was built by the Newburyport Turnpike Corporation in 1805, to serve the hotel located at the intersection (northeast corner). The author has never been able to find either Town or County acceptance of this portion of High Street.

Southeast of the Turnpike, the County has made various improvements. The major one was in 1919, when a layout from the Central Street intersection southerly across the river and continuing into Valley Road was recorded as a County way. This portion varies in width: sixty feet at the former railroad crossing, now occupied by the electric transmission line; one hundred feet wide from there to a point beyond the Ipswich River bridge; and sixty feet the balance of the distance into Valley Road.

Note: An alteration of the pavement at the junction with Wenham Road, made in the 1970's to control traffic, makes it appear that Wenham Road continues on down to the Valley Road. But, according to the description given in HC. XII, 62, and HC. XII, 96c, it terminates at High Street.

The whole length of High Street to the beginning of Valley Road lies within the six hundred acres granted to John Whittingham before 1643. He sold them September 9, 1648, to Brian Pendleton. The area south of the river was common land, subsequently divided among the early settlers or their successors. H., 63.

HIGH STREET EXTENSION runs northwesterly from the Common, between the Town Hall and the Church. It appears that it was considered part of Washington Street at one time. It was discontinued as a County way in 1873, when the Town Hall was built. There was a horse shed connected to the Congregational Church which is referred to in that description. HC. XII, 96b.

HILL STREET runs southwesterly from Salem Road to Rowley Bridge Street. On March 2, 1668/9, "the Towne hath accepted Wm. Nicklas and John Nicklas and Wm. Hobes from hie way work in ye Town upon consideration they live remoat: and upon condition thay mak there one hie ways to Topsfield Bridge nere to Joseph Towne's house."

In November of that same year, surveyors were chosen to "lay out the way from the bridge to Wm. Nicklas farm which he lives alone." This ancient way was part of the road that led to Middleton, following Rowley Bridge Street a short distance and then via Coppermine Road (now cut off by Route I-95).

Balch's Bridge on Salem Road is mentioned in Court Records of 1653, so there may well have been a path leading to Middleton long before the Town saw fit to lay it out. See HC. XVI, 51. In 1848, a portion of the road was widened. In 1971, the County widened the entire length to fifty feet in order to make room for a water main, with Clinton F. Goodwin, Engineer. The additional width was made on the northwesterly side, but the walls have not been changed.

This area was part of the common lands divided in 1664 among the thirty property owners of 1661. The two sharp rises in Hill Street near Cross Street used to be called Upper and Lower Israel, named for Israel Towne, who owned land in the vicinity.

HOMESTEAD WAY runs northerly from River Road, between Rowley Bridge Street and Washington Street. Christofer Recklitis of Boxford had the subdivision laid out by C. Lawrence Bond in 1967. It was accepted March 1, 1971.

This area was part of the three hundred acres granted to Daniel Patrick of Ipswich for his services in training the local residents in military affairs.

HOWLETT STREET starts northerly from the Common, turns easterly toward the foot of Great Hill and southeasterly along the side of the hill, passes under the Turnpike and ends at Perkins Row. In 1663, a new location for a Meeting House had been chosen where the Pine Grove Cemetery is today. For those coming from the eastern part of Town, the way probably continued along Great Hill to Pine Street and Haverhill Road.

However, as Sam Howlett's shop was built at the foot of the hill in 1668 and the Capen House facing the Training Field in 1687, an order to lay out a way between Parson Capen's and Howlett's dated March 7, 1692, would indicate that the present route has existed for three hundred years. In 1730, the location with respect to the Capen property was altered, which may account for the sharp turn near #10 Howlett Street. Gates were permitted to be maintained as late as 1785.

The two property owners mentioned above both had land given to them out of common land held by the Town after the large grants had been defined. Most of Great Hill was Common, but east of the Dry Bridge the early settlers rented or bought their farms from William Paine of Ipswich.

INTERSTATE ROUTE 95 is commonly referred to as I-95. After World War II, detailed studies were made of Route 1 (Boston Street, or the Turnpike) to see if it could be widened sufficiently for a three hundred foot right of way, but the need for a limited access road soon became apparent. In 1950, the Commonwealth constructed I-95 to the west side of Topsfield, entering the Town near the Danvers-Middleton-Topsfield Town corner and running northwesterly to the Middleton Town line near the Ipswich River Crossing. There are no access ramps to it in Topsfield, but one near Masconomet Regional High School serves the purpose.

In 1974, the right of way was widened to five hundred feet and additional lanes were paved in both north and south directions, as well as widening the median strip.

IPSWICH LANE is that part of Ipswich Road which connects with Campmeeting Road and was by-passed by the 1936 construction.

IPSWICH ROAD starts from the junction of Haverhill Road and Main Street, runs eastward around the base of Great Hill, crosses Mile Brook (unseen) near the Turnpike and continues to the Ipswich Town line at Gravelly Brook.

On March 2, 1668, the Town agreed "to make and maintain a bridge over ye brook by Ensign (Howlett's) house." Up until this time, Howlett Brook had been the Town line; the change to Gravelly Brook was made in 1697.

In 1667, the Town had voted to lay out a way that followed Campmeeting Road and North Street, but this was never defined until 1714. To reach the mill just west of the present Turnpike, the way took a route via Perkins Row and Averill Street. In 1696, Joseph Boardman built a house on the site of the present #178 Ipswich Road, so it would appear that there must have been a way to it approximately where the road is now. Anderson's map of Topsfield dated 1830 shows a way from the west but not continuing through to Howlett Brook.

In 1856, the County made a layout of Ipswich Road, east of the Turnpike, which followed what is now called Ipswich Lane into Campmeeting Road and so to the Perkins Row intersection. In 1936, the cut-off from Ipswich Lane to Perkins Row eliminated two bad curves, but the increase in traffic and speed makes these intersections dangerous. The County made layouts for the whole distance from Main Street to the Town line between 1962 and 1969, flattening curves and marking the bounds.

The westerly portion of Ipswich Road borders common lands and property of Thomas Baker, received from his father. The central portion goes through the five hundred acre grant to Symonds, and the easterly portion lies within the three hundred acres granted to Nathaniel Rogers. For detailed notes, see HC. XII, 68, 78 and 86.

The intersection with the Turnpike is properly called Shoemaker's Corner, and the area around it was called Springvale. Recent construction has obliterated all signs of the springs, and Mile Brook is hidden in a culvert between Averill Street and Shoemaker's Corner.

JOHN'S LANE runs southeasterly from Hill Street. Laid out in 1969 for access to property of Dohn W. Peirce and the New England Telephone Company, it was taken over by Sidney Rosenthal of Newton to develop house lots. Accepted May 13, 1975, it was engineered by Hayes Engineering Company.

This area was part of the common lands divided in 1664.

KENT ROAD runs northwesterly from North Street to Walker Road. Developed by Richard W. Skeffington of Topsfield under the name of Green Acres, with John W. Parsons of Lynn for Engineer, the plans were submitted in 1951 and accepted by the Town November 15, 1955.

Kent was the name of a nephew of Mr. Skeffington.

The area was part of the Samuel Symonds grant of five hundred acres before 1642. See H., 10.

KINSMAN LANE runs northerly from Washington Street not far from the sharp turn that leads toward Middleton. It was laid out in two consecutive periods as far as the first turn-around on land of J. David Breslin, with Clinton F. Goodwin as Engineer. Starting in 1956, the first portion was accepted March 2, 1959. Peat was encountered about half way along, and the second part was finally accepted March 5, 1962. An extension from the turn-around was, in 1968, submitted by R. E. Anderson of North Reading and approved by the Planning Board, but a problem arose involving the extension of Colerain Road. A further extension to be called Kinsman Circle has been submitted under new zoning regulations by Hayes Engineering of Melrose for the Beety Trust.

The area belonged to Zaccheus Gould in the seventeenth century, but how or from whom he acquired it is not clear.

LEDGEWOOD CIRCLE, a straight dead-end road, runs northerly from Ipswich Road toward Campmeeting Road, to which it was originally intended to connect. The local residents preferred to have it dead end and to call it a circle! Laid out by Wilfred Desmarais of Topsfield in 1966, with George Hayes for an Engineer, it was accepted March 19, 1973, and the area for connecting it with Campmeeting Road was sold to the abutters.

This area was in the easterly portion of the five hundred acres granted to Samuel Symonds before 1642.

LINEBROOK ROAD runs southeasterly from Haverhill Road to the Ipswich Town line, where it connects with the Boxford Road of Ipswich close to the junction of Pond Street. Linebrook Road is a very short link in the way from Ipswich to Andover marked by order of the Great and General Court in 1652. Thus, it rates as a County way. There are no extant markers today other than the stone walls on both sides.

For the original owner of this area, see the note at the end of the Haverhill Road description. Also, see HC. II, 64. The grant of enough land to satisfy Daniel Clark for some twenty-one acres that had never been set off for him would indicate that some of his grant must be land still in Ipswich, since the area between Haverhill Road, the Pond and the Town line is less than twenty-one acres.

LOCKWOOD LANE (formerly Mill Street) runs in a generally westerly direction from Washington Street south of Kinsman's and reaches the Boxford Town line just before crossing Route I-95.

The fact that Zaccheus Gould arrived in Topsfield as early as 1644, that he was living in this area, and that he owned a large area in Rowley Village (Boxford) would indicate that this way probably existed before the Town was incorporated. And it probably became the first way into Boxford from Topsfield.

In 1795, the newly created Post Office Department called for maps of each town in order to determine mail routes. Unfortunately, the one of Topsfield in the State Archives and in Washington was torn before being recorded, and the western half of Topsfield does not show. The 1795 map of Boxford does not show Lockwood Lane, but does show the ones that connect with River Road and Boxford Road. From this, it would appear that Lockwood Lane was not recognized as a public way, but in 1830 a map of Topsfield by Anderson shows it running to the Town line. In 1846, the County Engineer filed a plan showing a number of widenings of the way, albeit not a uniform width.

The widening of Route I-95 in 1974 necessitated the reconstruction of the bridge and a slight shift in the layout of Lockwood Lane at the Town line. The present name conforms to that of the road in Boxford with which it connects. The former name was based on the fact that there was, for some years, a mill on Fish Brook in Boxford.

MAIN STREET runs northerly from the Grove Street and Park Street intersection to the junction with Haverhill and Ipswich Roads. Southerly from Grove Street to the Turnpike was designated South Main Street when the Planning Board started numbering houses. (Numbering on each street starts at the end nearest to the village center, and these street and road descriptions are all given in the direction of these numbers. In the case of older roads, the actual construction and early definitions often ran in the opposite direction.)

A great many votes, viewings and layouts were made over the years, since the bridge was built across the Ipswich River on Salem Road in 1653. HC. XVI, 50, and HC. XII, 71. In 1807, the County layout, which includes Salem Road and South Main Street and northerly to the Common, is fundamentally the definition used up to the time of this writing, with a width of three rods, except the approaches to the bridge and the way through the Common, which were given as four rods (66 feet).

North of the Common, a layout was made in October, 1717, in conjunction with Haverhill Road. In 1936, the County made a layout which flattened the curve into Haverhill Road and necessitated moving the house at #132 back from what is now the westerly side line of the way.

The area which this road covers lies mostly within the Whittingham grant. The northerly part may have been common land.

MANSION DRIVE runs northerly from Ipswich Road, then turns sharply northwest and west to form a loop with Woodside Drive. The first one-tenth of a mile follows the driveway which served the mansion at #15 (the Thomas Baker-Cramcown estate). Elario and Green of Hamilton developed the property, with Charles H. Morse and Sons as Engineers. The first section was built in 1953 and accepted as a dead-end street in 1954. The second and longer portion was accepted March 2, 1959.

This area was Robert Paine's of Ipswich. He sold it to John Baker before Topsfield was incorporated, as one of the bounds of Thomas Dorman in 1649 was land of Baker. (Ipswich Ancient Records)

MAPLE LANE runs southwesterly from Central Street near its intersection with Maple Street. It was developed by Robert Porter of Danvers, and engineered by C. L. Bond in 1961. It was not recommended for approval by the Planning Board, but after alterations it was approved. However, friction between an abutter and Mr. Porter led to its rejection at a subsequent Town meeting, reducing it to a private court.

MAPLE STREET RUNS EASTERLY FROM South Main Street across the Turnpike to Central Street. First mention of it occurs in 1699, but undoubtedly it formed part of the way that connected the farms in the eastern part of Topsfield via Perkins Row and River Road with the farm of Zaccheus Gould. The portion from South Main Street to the Turnpike was widened and laid out October 30, 1845, and the balance toward Central Street in 1846.

At one time, it was known as Frank's Lane. HC. XII, 73. It lies within the Whittingham grant.

MCLEOD LANE is now closed by the taking of land for the Salem-Beverly Water Supply Board. See HC. XII, 73, for an early layout. It was accepted as a Town way after a new layout was made by the County Engineer in 1903. As of 1982, the way has not been discontinued, as the houses served by it have not been removed.

It was named for Norman McLeod, who lived in the house originally built for John Rea in 1827. From contours on the hillside beyond the house and the existence of a stone culvert, it would appear that the road continued to the top of the hill and connected with the Rea Farm Road, now occupied by the Government. No record has been found to indicate that it was ever a public way.

This part of Town was all common land until one of the later petitionings amongst the thirty commoners.

MEADOWVIEW ROAD runs southerly from Washington Street east of Kinsman's Corner. Developed by the Russet Trust of Melrose, with George E. Hayes as Engineer in 1961, it was accepted March 2, 1964.

It was part of the Daniel Patrick grant.

MEETINGHOUSE LANE runs northeasterly from Howlett Street to Perkins Row. This was part of the way in 1692 that led from Sargent Thomas Howlett's through what is now the northeast part of Perkins Row to Howlett Street. According to legend, the first Meeting House was located on the north side of the road until 1663. As late as 1955, there was a rubble foundation visible near #6, which might have been it. John Wild's is supposed to have been on the opposite side. HC. VIII, 48. See HC. XII, 80-81.

When Andrews Road was built in 1955, the deeds to the lots that bordered on Meetinghouse Lane were written to establish lines behind the stone walls and the intervening space dedicated to be a part of the way. The walls have not been moved, but the Town accepted the change November 21, 1955.

This area probably was part of the William Paine original grant or purchase.

MILL STREET. See Lockwood Lane. The Mill was in Boxford.

NORMANDY ROW runs from Main Street westerly to Parsonage Lane. The first survey study was made for the Mark Hodges Estate by George Hayes of Melrose in 1961. The Normandy Real Estate Trust then acquired the property and started the development in 1963. It was accepted March 6, 1967.

The original parsonage foundation was uncovered on the south side of the way, near Parsonage Lane intersection. It was given up when Joseph Capen built the well-known Parson Capen House. This was all common land before the 1663 Meeting House and the parsonage were cut out from it.

NORTH STREET runs northerly from Ipswich Road, crosses Mile Brook, continues by the Boston Street-Campmeeting Road junction and connects with the Old Right Road at the Ipswich Town line. See HC. XII, 76, for details of the votes cast and the delays that occurred, as well as the names of the owners through whose lands the way passed. The southerly portion as it now exists was laid out by the County March 8, 1836, the northerly portion, October 14, 1856. See references on Campmeeting Road.

This way leads through the central part of the five hundred acres granted to Samuel Symonds in 1637, but not defined until December, 1645.

NORTH COMMON STREET runs from Main Street across the north end of the Common to Howlett Street. This was always part of the Common or Training Field from the earliest days. The State insisted it have a name if it were to be used in figuring the miles of public roads in Town.

OAK DRIVE runs northeasterly from Colerain Road to the old railroad bed now occupied by the Massachusetts Electric Company transmission line. Robert and Grace Simms developed it in 1955 and expected to connect across to Parsonage Lane, but the abutters objected. The layout was accepted October 1, 1957. When it became necessary to construct a turn-around, the new design was accepted March 7, 1963.

This area of Topsfield appears to have been some of Zaccheus Gould's extensive holdings, as one parcel he sold to Robert Andrews was bordered by Pye Brook. From whom Gould acquired his tracts in Boxford is not known.

Oak Street was the name applied to Campmeeting Road, but it appears to have fallen out of use after the turn of the century.

ORCHARD LANE runs northeasterly from Parsonage Lane up the back side of Bare Hill. It is another of the roads laid out for the Normandy Real Estate Trust in 1963, by George E. Hayes of Melrose, on land which comprised most of the Bare Hill Farm owned by the Dr. Merriam family. It was accepted May 5, 1980.

It was part of the common land divided in 1720 amongst thirty-eight of the forty-nine commoners who contributed to the minister's rate the previous ten years. H. 70.

PARK STREET runs southeasterly from Main Street to Summer Street, parallel to the old railroad location. It was laid out by the County Engineer in 1872 and constructed in 1873. Its width of sixty feet allowed carriages to draw up to the station platform without blocking the way.

This area lies at the upper end of the six hundred acres originally granted to John Whittingham of Ipswich.

PARSONAGE LANE runs from Washington Street to Bare Hill Road. It constitutes the main thoroughfare for a development by the Normandy Real Estate Trust, Lester Peabody of Boston, Trustee, with George E. Hayes as Engineer. It was accepted piecemeal as constructed from March, 1964, to November, 1972.

This is a prime example of the mis-use of the word "Lane," which is inappropriate for a fifty-foot-wide, paved, through street. The name was chosen originally for a small subdivision somewhat nearer to Main Street, laid out when the zoning requirements for the district called for a minimum size of ten thousand square feet and seventy-five foot frontage, but not developed.

The original parsonage, used by Joseph Capen before he built his own home, was near the intersection of Normandy Row. The area must have been common land, for, in 1721, it was agreed to exchange three parcels of fifty acres (set aside for the ministry) for forty-eight acres west of the Training Field. Two acres had been set aside for the Capen House. So, seventy years after the incorporation of the Town, there was still undeveloped land west of the Common and north of the Meeting House! H., 58.

PEMBERTON ROAD runs southeasterly from South Main Street toward the Turnpike, but was never pushed through, due to the marshy area where School Brook and Cleaveland Brook join. It was laid out for Charles V. Jackman, in 1926, by Thomas A. Appleton of Salem. No record of its acceptance has been found.

This area lies within the six hundred acres granted to John Whittingham of Ipswich.

PERKINS CIRCLE runs northwesterly from Perkins Row near the Steward School and ends close to the Water Department's secondary field. It was laid out for Louis Cadoret of Salem(?) in August, 1971, originally as a crescent coming out on Perkins Row nearer to Mile Brook. When the Water Department bought some of the lots to protect the wells from contamination, the road was shortened and the lot lines rearranged by J. W. Parsons, Engineer. It was accepted May 13, 1975.

This area lies within some of the land held by William Paine before the Town was incorporated. It probably was the original grant given to him at the time that several others received remuneration for their services in 1639. In H., 11, Dow uses the word "allotment," but does not say when or for what. Paine lived in Ipswich and Boston and helped to support Harvard College by contributions, perhaps of land in Ipswich.

PERKINS ROW takes off from High Street at its junction with Central Street and follows a winding course over three miles to the intersection of Ipswich and Campmeeting Roads. In HC. XII, 79, Henry F. Long writes, "The portion from Meeting House Lane to Ipswich Street must have been the old way to Ipswich, and was probably the first road laid out in town. ... The first mention of this way in the town records is not till March 7, 1692/3, when 'Sarg. John Hovey and Daniell Ridington are chosen to vew the old highway and ... to lay it out from Samuel Houlett's to William Houlets.'" Part of this description covers Howlett Street and Meeting House Lane.

As early as 1653, in connection with a sale by William Paine to John Redington, mention is made of a road, which would indicate that it was in existence before that date.

Zaccheus Gould's daughters married Thomas Perkins and John Redington before the Town was incorporated in 1650. It is logical to believe that from their homes on Perkins Row they travelled via Central, Maple and River Streets to Zaccheus' home at Lockwood Lane long before those paths were staked as Town ways.

PINE STREET runs easterly and southeasterly from Haverhill Road to Ipswich Road. Its location was probably dictated by the topography, but there is reason to believe that it may have followed more or less a way that connected the earliest layout of Howlett Street, coming down the shoulder of Great Hill to the Meeting House located in the Pine Grove Cemetery. When Ipswich Road and Averill Street made it easier to go around the hill rather than over it, Howlett Street was changed to pass the blacksmith shop of Sam Howlett and head for the Training Field. By 1703, the Meeting House had been moved to the Common.

In 1872, the Town, having no engineer, petitioned the County to lay out Pine Street and to have it constructed before January 1, 1873. The layout is given in HC. XII, 83.

In 1721, when the final disposition of common lands was being made, Joseph Capen and John How received shares in eleven acres bordering the lands they already owned. From this and the fact that the 1663 Meeting House land was cut from common lands, one may deduce that Pine Street ran across common land, i.e., common prior to 1721.

PINE RIDGE ROAD runs southwesterly from Boxford Road to a dead end. It was acquired from Arthur W. Haines, who owned the property at the corner of Washington Street and Boxford Road, by Robert W. Simms of Topsfield in 1956. It was surveyed by Robert B. Parkhurst, Sr., of Boxford, and accepted August 12, 1958.

This area undoubtedly was part of the holdings of Zaccheus Gould, but from whom Zaccheus got it is not clear. See Note under Gail Street.

POND STREET runs northerly from Haverhill Road, crossing the outlet of Hood's Pond and continuing to the Ipswich Town line, where it joins Boxford Road, Ipswich. It was originally part of the road ordered by the Court that ran from Salem through the present village along Haverhill Road to the northerly limits of Topsfield, to connect with the road from Ipswich to Andover and to the way to Georgetown and Haverhill. It was defined by the Town in March, 1668/9, and by the County in 1821. HC. XII, 83. See reference under Haverhill Road.

PORTER MEADOW ROAD runs southerly from Glen Road. It is part of a subdivision of property once owned by Bertram C. Gould and later by Thomas O'Keefe, Jr. The development was made for the latter in 1958, with C. L. Bond as Engineer. It was accepted by the Town March 7, 1960.

This area was part of the very extensive holdings of Zaccheus Gould. See references under Gail Street.

PROCTOR DRIVE, a short dead-end street north of Audubon Drive, is part of the on-going Green Acres development started by Richard W. Skeffington, Sr., of Topsfield, engineered by John W.

Parsons of Lynn. The turn-around is not far from the location of the Thomas Emerson Proctor mansion.

This area lies within the original grant of land to William Paine of Ipswich, date unrecorded. He owned something like seven hundred acres according to Dow's History, but how much he held at any one time is hard to determine, as he bought and sold in various parts of Town.

PROSPECT STREET runs southerly from South Main Street to River Road over the hill called at various times "Billingsgate," Price's, and now Prospect. In the 1600's, it bore to the right after crossing the brook, now concealed in a double pipe conduit, then turned sharply left up the grade to its present location. In 1706, this jog served the house at #11 where Zaccheus Perkins lived. At that time, the Town was asked to lay out a way over the hill, but he made such objection that the Town agreed to put it where Perkins preferred. He promised to build the causey at his own expense. This is undoubtedly the lane that is close to #19 South Main Street on private property. HC. XII, 84.

After Perkins' death, the Town used the way, to which he objected, but it was not officially laid out until October 26, 1835, and accepted November 10. Mr. Long's attempt to decipher some of the old descriptions is a little hard to follow. There is still a lane running northwesterly from Prospect Street toward Porter Meadow which used to come out on Washington Street. It is possible that the way he refers to turned west before crossing the meadow and circled the base of the hill. It would be along way around, but it would save going up the steepest part of Prospect Street.

REA ROAD, sometimes called Rea Farm Road, is on land which was registered in the Land Court in 1955. No one appeared for the Town to claim any interest in it as a public way, so, as the expression goes, "they slept on the rights." There is evidence on the ground that at one time this way connected with McLeod Road and possibly across the Turnpike with a way to Rowley Bridge Street.

The area lay within the common lands and is close to the long-disputed Salem-Topsfield Town line, which was a factor in the Witchcraft craze. See HC. XII, 85.

RIDGEVIEW ROAD runs westerly from Brookside Road in the Red Pines development, laid out in 1973 by E. A. Quinn of Topsfield, with John W. Parsons as Engineer. It was accepted May 5, 1981.

For details on the area, see Brookside Road.

RIVER ROAD runs northwesterly from Salem Road across Washington Street and terminates at Fish Brook, where it connects with Curtis Lane, Boxford. While it is one of the oldest ways in Town, the earliest record of a layout is dated March 27, 1771, which was accepted April 1, 1771. Perhaps they did not drive as fast as we do today, but they could get action!

In 1799, John Balch petitioned for a way to be marked. The Selectmen did so, estimating the damages and "referring to said John all the potatoes that shall grow on said road the present year:—said Roger Balch not to improve the road for any other purpose than passing and repassing for the term of one year."

In 1644, Zaccheus Gould built his house at the corner of Lockwood Lane and Washington Street. His route to the Meeting House would have carried him across the plain toward Slough Brook and the foot of Prospect Hill to River Road near its junction with Prospect Street, along River to Salem Road, Maple Street and Perkins Row. After the Meeting House was moved to Haverhill Road, it would have been shorter to travel via Washington Street. The present western portion of River Road provided a drier route to Washington Street and Boxford. The Z. Gould referred to in the 1771 description was the grandson of the first settler.

This area lies within the three hundred acres granted to Captain Patrick of Ipswich for his service to the Town in military training.

ROBERT ROAD runs northwesterly from North Street to Walker Road. It was part of the first layout of Green Acres, developed by R. W. Skeffington, Sr., of Topsfield, on the extensive Proctor estate. Started in 1951, with John Parsons of Lynn as Engineer, it was accepted November 15, 1955.

This area lies within the five hundred acres granted to Samuel Symonds of Ipswich in 1637. The name of Topsfield for the Town is credited to him.

Robert was the name of one of Skeffington's sons.

ROSS ROAD runs parallel to Washington Street from Brook Road to River Road. The subdivision, sometimes called Clover Farms, sometimes Topsfield Plains, and formerly part of the Cass Farm, was developed by John A. Ross and Walter E. Wilkinson in 1952, with Dana Perkins and Sons as Engineers. It was accepted November 15, 1955.

This area lies within the three hundred acres granted to Captain Daniel Patrick of Ipswich. He served in the Pequot Indian War in 1637.

ROWLEY BRIDGE STREET (specifically "street," to avoid confusion) runs southeasterly from River Road, crosses the Ipswich River and continues southerly all the way to the Danvers Town line. It is so named for the bridge across the river where the Boxford (formerly Rowley Village) Town line comes down Fish Brook and turns upstream along the river. The long description in HC. XII, 89-91, is mostly a definition of Hill Street. Dow's History, 14, is somewhat better, but is still confusing, as on page 56, Dow states the Redington and Towne properties were on Hill Street near Garden.

Southerly of the Hill Street intersection, Rowley Bridge Street was laid out in 1727 to the Danvers Town line. The short piece between Hill Street and Coppermine Road was part of the 1668 layout of a way to Middleton. The northerly end of Rowley Bridge Street from Coppermine Road to River Road and Washington Street was accepted March 3, 1767. This appears correct because it ends up passing through lands of Simon, Joseph and Zaccheus Gould and connects with "the road leading from Fishing Brook, so called to Topsfield Meeting House." It was relocated or defined September 3, 1775, June, 1802, April 14, 1829, and marked with stonebounds by the County December 24, 1883.

When Route I-95 was widened in 1974, a short section of Rowley Bridge Street was relocated a few yards to the northeast. This necessitated a change in some of the lot lines and frontages for the Meredith Hill subdivision.

The whole area south of the river was common land, and north, Captain Patrick's.

ROWLEY ROAD runs northeast and northerly from Haverhill Road to the Ipswich Town line near the eastern end of Hood's Pond. It connects with Linebrook Road, Ipswich, not to be confused with the road of that name northwest of the pond in Topsfield. It was laid out October 3, 1717, to serve an area of common land as shown on the maps in HC. XXIX, preceding page 49. The first two maps, 1700 and 1750, show Rowley Road as going off to the east, while the 1800 map shows it going close to the pond, but with the first way still shown. No description is given for this eastern branch.

The worded description in 1717 definitely starts near the pond, so the road must have been there, despite the omission on the 1750 delineation.

This road appears to have served several first grants as well as some common land. Winthrop of Ipswich had three hundred acres, mostly in Linebrook parish, but partly in Topsfield, and Theophilus Swachill had forty acres which were south of Hood's Pond.

SALEM ROAD runs southerly from South Main Street over the Ipswich River and southeasterly over the hill to Wheel Brook and the Danvers Town line. In the early days, it turned into Wenham Road a short distance, then ran some six hundred feet east of its present location and joined Locust Street at the Town line. Henry Long, HC. XII, 93, quotes an order dated 4th of the 5th month, 1656, that "there shall be a way four rods wide from the forde nigh to the house of W. Towne through lands of Wm. Towne, Wm. Howard Jacob Towne, Edmund Towne and George Bunker as it is laid out." The first part of this description would seem to fit the causeway leading from near the bridge to South Main Street, but the order in which the other property owners are listed would indicate that the balance was for a way leading toward Perkins Row, and of course, in 1656, that was the direction of the Meeting House.

The 1703 layout tells us nothing other than that there was a road from the Common (the location of the new Meeting House) over the Town bridge, "as the Road gose through our town to Salem Line." So we eventually come to the layout of July 13, 1807, when a map was drawn, inclusive of Salem Road, South Main Street and Main Street. This map is recorded in the County Engineer's office in Salem.

North of the river, Salem Road was at the southwest corner of the six hundred acres granted to John Whittingham prior to the incorporation of the Town. South of the river was common land.

SCHOOL AVENUE runs easterly from Main Street to the Public Works Garage. It was named for the school, which stood at the top of the knoll until the mid-1930's. The Avenue was deeded to the Town March 12, 1868, when it purchased the Academy and grounds from Jeremiah Balch, the deed giving "the right and privilege of the way near the Southwest corner of the premises & pass (sic) the highway leading by the dwelling house of B. D. Adams."

This area lies within the six hundred acres held by Whittingham before the incorporation of the Town.

SILVERBROOK ROAD runs northeasterly from Lockwood Lane to the Boxford Town line and continues into Boxford with the same name. The subdivision was made by Great Northern Homes, Inc., with Clinton F. Goodwin for Engineer, in 1955. It was accepted March 5, 1962.

SLEEPY HOLLOW ROAD is a dead-end road running southerly and curving southwesterly from Wenham Road. It has had a checkered career as far as the engineers involved with it were concerned. First surveyed by a Salem engineer, the first layout seems to have been for Warren Rust, who farmed on a fairly large scale in Topsfield. William Pizzano of Topsfield made a plan for Jewitt in June 1957. In 1960, George E. Hayes, of Melrose, submitted a plan for the Tacoma Trust, also of Melrose, which extended the turn-around onto property which had belonged to the Shattuck estate. C. L. Bond set stonebounds in 1961, and the road was accepted March 5, 1962.

This area was part of the common lands partitioned among the Commoners according to the amounts they had contributed to the minister's rate during the 1710 to 1720 period.

SOUTH COMMON STREET is the curved section of road in front of the Topsfield Library between Main and High Streets. This was not part of the original Training Field but was acquired as a location for the Civil War monument dedicated in 1914.

This area was at the north end of the Whittingham property.

SOUTH MAIN STREET runs southeasterly from the Main and Grove Street intersection to Boston Street. See notes under Main Street and Salem Road. The July 13, 1807, layout is approximately that of the present layout, which is unmarked except as private property lines have been located thereon. The section between Salem Road and Boston Street was laid out by the County June 8, 1827.

The way lies fairly close to the southwest side of the Whittingham grant, ante-dating the incorporation of the Town.

STAGECOACH ROAD runs southeasterly from Rowley Road and stops short of Howlett Brook. It was laid out for Donald Goodwin of Topsfield by John Parsons, C. E., of Lynn, in 1956 and accepted August 12, 1958. The name is pure realtor unction.

The area lies within the Thomas Dorman property of the late 17th century, but it is not clear that his grant of seventy acres extended this far north of the point where Mile Brook divides from Howlett Brook. After the incorporation of the Town, Dorman began to acquire land abutting his original grant. For Perley's opinion, see HC. XXIX, 70. The hill on the northeast side of Stagecoach Road was probably part of John Winthrop, Jr.'s, grant of three hundred acres, part of which is in Ipswich.

SUMMER STREET runs northeasterly from South Main Street to High Street. On May 6, 1872, the Road Commissioners were petitioned to lay out a road, "there being a need of suitable building lots near the centre of business at a reasonable price." On September 27, it was voted "that the Commissioners finish the road before January 1, 1873." No Planning Board, no soil test, no zoning, no impact report; just get on with the job! HC. XII, 95.

The area lies within the six hundred acres of the Whittingham grant or purchase.

SURREY LANE runs northeasterly from Boxford Road, crosses the Boxford Town line and recrosses it into Topsfield, where it connects with Bare Hill Road. This is the main thoroughfare of the Woodshire subdivision promoted by Dorman Burley of Topsfield. Hayes Engineering started the engineering in 1972 and the first segment went as far as the Town line. After many revisions, it was accepted May 6, 1980.

The area was the subject of dispute with Governor Endicott as to where the Town line was, as it was the boundary of his grant of five hundred fifty acres.

THOMPSON LANE is a dead-end road leading southeasterly from the northerly end of Surrey Lane. The subdivision was made for the Beety Trust (Burley and Thompson, both of Topsfield) by Hayes Engineering Company of Melrose in 1976. It was accepted May 6, 1980.

This area was some of the undivided common lands west of Pye Brook. See H., 69, line 5.

TIMBER LANE runs southeasterly from Rowley Road and ends before crossing Howlett Brook. It covers, in part, a very old path that connected across the brook with Boardman Lane. The preliminary layout was made for McMullen of Manchester, by C. Lawrence Bond of Topsfield, in 1965. Later, the subdivision was taken over by Richard Hammer of Lynnfield, who engaged Robert E. Anderson of North Reading as Engineer. A new plan was submitted in 1970 and finally accepted May 6, 1980.

This area falls within the Thomas Dorman property. See the reference under Stagecoach Road.

TOWNE LANE runs northerly from High Street and curves northwesterly along the shoulder of Towne Hill, stopping short of Howlett Street. Developed by the Topsfield Business Trust, Richard Hammer of Topsfield, Trustee, the original engineering was done by C. Lawrence Bond of Topsfield, in 1961. Due to friction between the engineer and the developer, the actual staking out was completed by Hayes Engineering of Melrose. The way was accepted March 3, 1969.

The area falls within the six hundred acres granted John Whittingham of Ipswich before the Town was incorporated.

VALLEY ROAD runs from High Street southeast of the Ipswich River and curves around the base of the hill to rejoin High Street at the Danvers Town line. The layout was made originally for a trolley line from Danvers and the tracks were laid as far as Putnamville, but opposition to its construction led to its abandonment. The County took over the right-of-way in 1919. In Topsfield, Valley Road is part of Route 97 leading toward Wenham. In Danvers, it is Route 35.

All the undivided common lands remaining in 1721 were allocated to the property owners according to their contributions to the minister's rate during the period 1710-1720.

WALKER ROAD runs northeasterly from Boardman Lane to Kent Road. It originally was intended to continue north, parallel to North Street, but to date is limited to the southerly end. It was laid out for R. W. Skeffington, Sr., in 1951, as the first step in his Green Acres development, which is still an on-going project of Richard, Jr. The name is his middle name. It was accepted November 15, 1955, as far as Kent Road.

See the note under Robert Road.

WASHINGTON STREET runs westerly from the north end of the Common to Kinsman's Corner and then southerly to the Boxford Town line at Fish Brook. HC. XII, 96, quotes the following: "At a lawful Town meeting ye 8 of Apriell, 1667 ffrances Peabody, John Gould and John Redington are chosen to Vew & Lay out a hieway from the meeting house to Mr. Endickat farme soficant for carte."

The Meeting House in 1667 was in the present Pine Grove Cemetery and the way mentioned above went toward Normandy Row and Parsonage Lane, then continued westerly to a point near Kinsman Lane where it turned south toward Kinsman's Corner and on to Fish Brook. At the Town line, the name changes to Endicott Road. When the Congregational Church was moved to its present location on the Common in 1703, the old layout became used less and less, until the construction of the railroad in 1854 made it impassable by reason of a deep cut.

See HC. XII, 96a, for the description of the old way to Boxford. The Andrews cellars are behind #23 Boxford Road. The old way joined Boxford Road of today after crossing the Townline and before Route I-95.

See HC. XII, 54, under Boxford Road. The last paragraph indicates a portion of Washington Street leading north from River Road area to the way mentioned above. The 1813 layout connected the present Washington Street through Kinsman's Corner to the present Boxford Road. The old way, as described by Long, bore off to the north near #77 Washington Street and joined the still older way east of the Andrews cellars.

As late as 1838, Capen's Causeway is still used as a reference, but the way laid out on April 16 would appear to be either Main Street or a way parallel to it. The causeway may have been across School Brook north of the Common. This was probably somewhere in the vicinity of Normandy Row.

In HC. XII, 96a, second paragraph, it would seem that this layout implied that Capen's causeway was John Capen's, not his father's.

In HC. XII, 96c, second paragraph, Zaccheus Perkins lived on Prospect Street. Joseph Capen owned land at one time at the top of Prospect Hill.

This all proves the need to study more of the relative location of the various property owners before one can say whether the layouts had any relation to Washington Street or the former way toward Boxford.

The descriptions which H. F. Long credits to Mill Street (Lockwood Lane) fit the portion of Washington Street south of Kinsman's Corner, based on the bearings and the names of the abutters. The only recent layout for this part of the street was made in connection with the 1955 development of the Clover Farms. C. L. Bond staked the westerly line for the sidewalk in 1959, when the State mandated it, for school children to use to the nearest bus stop.

The southerly end was called Middleton Road at one time, but because of its proximity to Middleton Road in Boxford with which it does not connect, its use was dropped to avoid confusion.

The area lies within the grant to Captain Daniel Patrick of Ipswich.

WENHAM ROAD runs east from Salem Road to High Street a short distance above the Danvers Town Corner. See HC. XII, 96d. The first description ends near Wenham Causeway, but does not seem to fit the present road. The second mentions a discontinuance or alteration of another highway prayed for by Nathaniel Averill. September 27, 1757, the County made a layout.

The earliest layout of Salem Road followed Wenham Road for a short distance before turning south toward the Dwinell cellars.

This area was not divided among the Commoners until 1721, but there seems to have been some occupancy of the farms before that date.

WEST COMMON STREET runs northwesterly along the edge of the Common in front of the Town Hall. It would appear from action of the County Commissioners on August 26, 1873, a vote was taken to discontinue a travelled way across the "Common," so-called, commencing near the house of Moses Wildes on Main Street to the highway leading to Boxford. As the Town Hall was built that year, this probably gave freedom to the Town to alter or use it as the Town saw fit.

WEST STREET See Bare Hill Road and HC. XII, 96e.

WILDES STREET runs easterly from Boston Street, crosses East Street and terminates at the Ipswich Town line, where the name changes to Gravelly Brook Road. Before the Turnpike was built in 1804, this way started at North Street, running northeasterly and curved sharply southeast to a point near the present 'pike. See HC. XII, 96f, for the names of the numerous abutters. Layouts were made in 1781 and June, 1818.

The area lies within the five hundred acres granted to Samuel Symonds in 1637, near the northerly extent.

WILLIAM ROAD runs due West from Ross Road and ends near Fish Brook. The development by John Ross of Middleton and Walter E. Wilkinson of Lynnfield was started in 1952, with Dana Perkins and Sons as Engineers. It was accepted after long debate November 15, 1955.

WILLOWDALE ROAD is a loop on the north side of Ipswich Road, constructed in two separate developments. Started by Durkee and son of Danvers, the more easterly part was designed and engineered by C. Lawrence Bond of Topsfield in 1960. The westerly portion, on land owned by Arthur Pym of Topsfield, was handled by Hayes Engineering of Melrose, but it was not staked out until 1979, when Doug Conn of Topsfield acquired the property. During the nineteen year interval, a turn-around was granted as an easement at the end of the first construction. The first portion was accepted March 1, 1965.

The whole area was part of the three hundred acres granted to Nathaniel Rogers of Ipswich, probably in 1639, but not defined until 1650, the year before he sold it to Thomas Howlett.

WILMOR ROAD forms a loop on the west side of Haverhill Road. It was developed by Williams and Morley in 1966, engineered by C. L. Bond of Topsfield and was accepted March 1, 1971. The area, originally level with Haverhill Road, was excavated for sand by Connelly Bros. of Beverly and later by Videtta Corp. of Peabody. Left in very rough contours, it required considerable grading before any attempt was made to develop it.

The area lies in the western portion of the Thomas Dorman property. See the note under Stagecoach Road.

WINSOR LANE runs southeasterly from Ipswich Road to Perkins Row. It was started by Louis Cadoret of Salem(?) with E. A. Averell of Lynnfield as Engineer, but only about half met with the approval of the Planning Board and was accepted by the Town, August 12, 1958. By the time the balance was completed seven years later, the requirements of the Planning Board had stiffened considerably with respect to construction standards. It was accepted March 1, 1965.

This area lay about where the Governor Bradstreet and Samuel Symonds grants originally bordered each other, but William Paine's property came close. He bought and sold so much that it is difficult to identify his original grant.

WOODBRIAR ROAD runs southerly from High Street near the Turnpike. It was laid out for Carl Bergstrom by C. L. Bond, Registered Engineer, in April, 1955, and accepted March 4, 1957. It was the second and last subdivision made before the zoning minimum area was increased from ten thousand to twenty thousand square feet.

The area lies within the six hundred acres granted to Whittingham.

WOODSIDE ROAD runs northwesterly from Ipswich Road. The 1954 development by Elario and Green of Hamilton was called Forest Park, and engineered by Charles Morse and Son of Bradford. The major portion was accepted November 15, 1955. The extension beyond Mansion Drive was redesigned before construction in 1960 and accepted March 5, 1962.

The area was in the name of John Baker before 1649, as the land of Baker is given as the southerly boundary of the seventy acre grant to Thomas Dorman in 1649. In 1661, John gave his farm of one hundred fifty acres to his son, Thomas Baker. The greater part of this lay south of Pye and Mile Brooks. See Ancient Records, Ipswich, at the Essex Institute Library in Salem.

Vital Records of Topsfield, Massachusetts for 1900 to 1950

Foreword

The Vital Records for the town from its incorporation to 1849 may be found in The Historical Collections of the Topsfield Historical Society, Volume 9; and for 1850 to 1899, in Volume 21. At the time of this publication, there are a few of these volumes still available from the Publications Committee, Topsfield Historical Society.

The information printed on the following pages has been copied from the Topsfield Annual Reports. It is possible that there have been omissions in transcribing from the original records in the Town Clerk's office. If there is reason to question any of the data herein, it is recommended that the original entries be checked.
